Urban Nature - up against the wall

Copenhagen Photo Festival and Museum of Copenhagen launches the photo competition Urban Nature may 27th. Display your best shot of the city's nature on THE WALL and join the competition for a Canon SLR camera.

Snapshots of angry park officers and pictures of party animals on deroute. Creative images of Urban Nature must be in focus when Copenhagen Photo Festival and The Museum of Copenhagen May 27th - June 19th invites to photo competition about nature in the city.

The vagrant as urban nature

The city has its very own life and nature, and that is what the festival would like to focus on with the photo competition Urban Nature.

Nature is indeed a broad subject, and therefore Rasmus Ranum, managing director and founder of the large scale photo festival in Copenhagen, together with Julie Navne Klitbo want to see both portraits of the city's vagrants, as well as pictures of flower beds and crazy party animals.

The competition is open and the festival calls on everyone to be creative and send in pictures. This applies to locals, tourists, photo enthusiasts – professionals as well as amateurs.

Win a Canon SLR camera

The images will be a part of the interactive exhibit wall, THE WALL, launched by Museum of Copenhagen. During the festival June 9th-19th THE WALL is located at the City Hall Square in the centre of Copenhagen.

Upload your photo before June 19th 2011, 24.00 to www.copenhagen.dk.

Remember to tag your picture 'Urban Nature'. The winning image will be selected by a jury of photographers Per Morten Abrahamsen and Nicky Bonne and curator Sarah Giersing and will be rewarded with a Canon EOS 600D with 18-55 lens.

Copenhagen Photo Festival 2011 is a non-profit organization and is supported by Københavns Kommune, Region Hovedstaden, Politiken and Canon.
